Uncompassionate: Physician Assisted Suicide

People are so used to reading about our battle to stop abortion that they often forget our mission is to protect human life from conception through natural death. They incorrectly assume that since euthanasia and physician assisted suicide (PAS) are currently illegal in Ohio that we don't need to be overly concerned about end-of-life issues. The reality is that we need to be VERY concerned. PAS is now legal in five states, and the arguments used to make this practice legal are as dangerous and twisted as those that the abortion industry used to get people to believe that the killing of an unborn child is healthcare.

A few months ago, an Ohio-based organization (backed by the wealthy pro-assisted suicide and pro-euthanasia group Compassion & Choices) formed and received their nonprofit status from the IRS in only one week. They've been busy contacting physicians, the media and legislators with the idea that Ohioans deserve the right to die by assisted suicide using a false message of compassion and dignity. The group is attempting to introduce pro-PAS legislation to Ohio probably sometime in 2017. Their message is as false as the abortion industry message that abortion is a woman's reproductive right. They often target vulnerable populations like the elderly, the sick and the disabled with the subtle messaging that they don't want to be a burden on their loved ones, and that their lives are less valuable than those without any disability. They promote the idea that to die with dignity you must die faster, and choose the time of your death.

The article "20 Reasons Why Euthanasia Corrupts Everything It Touches and Must Be Opposed" published in LifeSiteNews on June 9, 2016 cites many of the consequences and implications that are not adequately considered, or are hidden behind false messaging. Among those reasons are that "assisted suicide creates a new, fictitious right—the 'right to die.' This fundamentally undermines the right to life, which cannot be given up, even voluntarily. The 'right to die' is an absurdity." A reason more familiar to those fighting abortion is that with assisted suicide "giving medical professionals a legally-protected right to kill, even in initially restricted circumstances, is as stupid as it is dangerous. The potential for this right to be misused to cover up, for instance, malpractice or botched treatment is already beginning to manifest itself in European countries where euthanasia is legal." We know that legal abortion has covered up sex trafficking and sex abuse, yet little has been done to prevent this. PAS cannot only cover up medical malpractice, but has the potential for abuse of inheritance rights and more.

Not Dead Yet (NDY) is a national, grassroots disability rights group that opposes legalization of assisted suicide and euthanasia as deadly forms of discrimination. They demand the equal protection of the law for the targets of so called "mercy killing" whose lives are seen as worth-less. The recent release of the movie "Me Before You" about the supposedly dignified choice to die by the disabled main character prompted NDY to release the following:

"The disability community responded to the disability snuff movie, 'Me Before You', with protests in many countries on three continents. The movie gives audiences the message that if you're a disabled person, you're better off dead #LiveBoldly? We already do! #MeBeforeEuthanasia"

PAS, like abortion, goes against the purpose of modern medicine which is to

Will You Vote In November?

Denise Leipold Executive Director

This year's elections have been anything but dull. The disparity between the presidential candidates is so vast that it has sparked many a lively (and sometimes ugly) debate among friends and family. Both sides have well planned rhetoric that sometimes stretches kernels of truth into believable facts.

The danger with polarizing elections where both of the main candidates have low popularity ratings is that many people will stay home from the voting booths thinking that their vote won't mean a thing. Nothing can be further from the truth! As my mom used to tell me, we may not like what we have on the table before us, but we have to eat! We learn what foods to eat to stay healthy. Likewise, we need to look at the menu this election to see what is good for us. As a charitable organization, IRS rules forbid us from telling you who to vote for. However, they don't prevent us from addressing the options.

The following is a list we compiled adapted from the publication "Voting With a Clear Conscience" put together by the organization Priests for Life:

1. VOTE! This is MOST important....make sure you actually vote: voting is a moral obligation!
2. KNOW THE CANDIDATES. Be sure you know where the candidates stand on the issues. As the elections draw closer, we will have candidate comparison pieces available through our office or website.
3. REJECT THE DISQUALIFIED. If a candidate came forward and said, "I support terrorism," you wouldn't say, "I disagree with you on terrorism, but what's your health care plan?" Similarly, those who permit the destruction of innocent life by abortion disqualify themselves from consideration.
4. DISTINGUISH POLICY FROM PRINCIPLE. Most disagreements between candidates and political platforms do not have to do with principle ("Is there a RIGHT to crime?"), but rather with policy ("How do we reduce crime?") But the dispute over whether there is a right to life does deal with principle, and is therefore more fundamental.
5. WEIGH OTHER ISSUES PROPERLY. Not all issues have equal weight. War, for example, may be morally justified, but abortion and euthanasia never are.
6. KEEP YOUR LOYALTY FOCUSED ON JESUS. Your loyalty to Jesus Christ must be stronger than your loyalty to any political party.

7. REMEMBER, THE PARTY MATTERS.

Elections do not only put individual candidates into power; they put political parties into power. Consider what the parties stand for, what their platform states, and how the outcome of the election affects the balance of power.

8. DISTINGUISH "CHOOSING EVIL" FROM "LIMITING EVIL".

If two opposing candidates both support abortion, then ask: "Which of the two candidates will do less harm to unborn children?" This is NOT choosing the lesser of two evils, but rather it is choosing to limit an evil, and while not ideal, it is a positive.

9. SUPPORT THE CANDIDATE/ISSUE WITH MORE THAN A VOTE.

Additional activities include donating, volunteering for the campaign, handing out literature, making phone calls, using yard signs and bumper stickers, and praying. To bring about a culture of life, it takes action and preparation.

10. MOBILIZE AS MANY OTHER VOTERS AS POSSIBLE.

I know how hard it is to put your heart into an election when you don't have the ideal slate of candidates. But you do have a voice, a vote, and the chance to bring about a positive change in the culture of life. You can't do that by staying silent, or by not casting your vote. Become educated, and vote to protect life at all stages from conception through natural death. May God lead you to choose life, and may He bestow His blessings on our country especially throughout this crucial election season.

For Life,

Denise Leipold
Executive Director

If you're not registered to vote, you must register by Oct. 11, 2016 to vote this November.

Helpful Election Information: Comparing Party Platforms

As we've stated before, we can't advocate for or against a political party or candidate, but what we can do is to educate everyone on where the parties stand on the life issues. Thank you to our friends at the Life Issues Institute for disseminating the following information from the major party platforms ratified at their conventions this past summer. To view more complete analysis and to access the entire party platforms, visit their website at www.lifeissues.org.

Republican Platform of 2016 Excerpts of Planks on the Life Issues

Abortion

We assert the sanctity of human life and affirm that the unborn child has a fundamental right to life which cannot be infringed. We support a human life amendment to the Constitution and legislation to make clear that the 14th amendment's protections apply to children before birth.

Appointing Judges

We support the appointment of judges who respect traditional family values and the sanctity of innocent human life.

Planned Parenthood

We oppose the use of public funds to perform or promote abortion or to fund organizations, like Planned Parenthood, so long as they provide or refer for elective abortions or sell fetal body parts rather than provide healthcare.

Legislation

We salute the many states that now protect women and girls through laws requiring informed consent, parental consent, waiting periods and clinic regulation. We applaud the US House of Representatives for leading the effort to add enforcement to the Born Alive Infant Protection Act by passing the Born Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act.

Affordable Care Act/Obamacare

Any honest agenda for improving healthcare must start with repeal of the dishonestly named Affordable Care Act of 2010: Obamacare. It weighs like the dead hand of the past upon American medicine. We call for a permanent ban on federal funding and subsidies for abortion and healthcare plans that include abortion coverage.

End of Life

We oppose the non-consensual withholding or withdrawal of care or treatment, including food and water, from individuals with disabilities, newborns, the elderly or the infirm, just as we oppose euthanasia and assisted suicide.

International

The UN's Population Fund has, from its origin, been rooted in no-growth policies that limit economic development in the countries needing it most. Its complicity in China's barbaric program of forced abortion led President Reagan to set a wall of separation—his Mexico City Policy, which prohibits the granting of federal monies to non-governmental organizations that provide or promote abortion. We affirm his position and, in light of plummeting birth rates around the world, suggest a reevaluation of the UN's record on economic progress.

Democrat Platform of 2016 Excerpts of Planks on the Life Issues

Abortion

Democrats are committed to protecting and advancing reproductive health, rights and justice. We believe unequivocally, like the majority of Americans, that every woman should have access to quality reproductive health care services, including safe and legal abortion—regardless of where she lives, how much money she makes, or how she is insured. We believe that reproductive health is core to women's, men's and young people's health and wellbeing.

Appointing Judges

We will appoint judges who defend the constitutional principles of liberty and equality for all, and will protect a woman's right to safe and legal abortion.

Planned Parenthood

We will continue to stand up to Republican efforts to defund Planned Parenthood health centers, which provide critical health services to millions of people.

Legislation

We will continue to oppose—and seek to overturn—federal and state laws and policies that impede a woman's access to abortion, including by repealing the Hyde Amendment.

Affordable Care Act/Obamacare

We will defend the ACA, which extends affordable preventive health care to women, including no cost contraception, and prohibits discrimination in health care based on gender.

End of Life

Our country faces a long-term care crisis that prevents too many seniors and people with disabilities from being able to live with dignity at home or in their communities. Programs that emphasize independence rather than institutionalization must be better structured to support them.

International

We believe that safe abortion must be part of comprehensive maternal and women's health care and included as part of America's global health programming. Therefore, we support the repeal of...the "global gag rule" and the Helms Amendment that bars American assistance to provide safe, legal abortion throughout the developing world.

NOTE: This article is a continuation from our last issue concerning the release of videos filmed by the Center for Medical Progress (CMP) and the alleged illegal altering of abortion procedures by Planned Parenthood to obtain aborted body parts, and the harvesting of those parts for profit. The videos can be viewed on our website. Click on the "news" tab, then "defund Planned Parenthood", and scroll down to the videos.

All Charges in Houston, TX Against Pro-Lifers Dismissed.

On June 14, 2016, pro-lifers scored a partial victory when Judge Diane Bull of Texas dismissed the misdemeanor charge against David Daleiden and his associate, Sandra Merritt, of the Center for Medical Progress (CMP), which alleged they were attempting to buy body parts, even though they were only pretending to be interested in doing so to expose Planned Parenthood's alleged participation in the practice. The judge found the charge flawed and defective, ruling the indictment did not conform to legal guidelines.

On July 26, 2016, the Harris County, Texas, District Attorney's Office dismissed the second, more serious charge of "tampering with a government record" for using a fake identification to gain access to the abortion facility. If convicted, this could have resulted in a fine of $20,000 and 20 years in prison. It is likely that the charges were dropped because the Thomas More Society, a pro-life legal group, intended to present the court with evidence of "grave, egregious violations of the ethical and legal rules that forbid prosecutorial misconduct." One example of the latter was documented collusion between the DA's office and PP's lawyer. Daleiden still faces RICO charges brought against him by PP in San Francisco, however.

Evidence Against Planned Parenthood Continues to Mount.

On August 15, 2015, Stem Express, a tissue-procurement company notified Planned Parenthood (PP) and the U.S. Congress that it was ending its relationship with PP. Its decision came shortly after a California judge ruled that it would not likely prevail in its lawsuit seeking to suppress further videos being released by CMP showing ties between the two companies. In CMP's sixth video, Holly O'Donnell, a former employee, described the process of body part harvesting at a PP clinic where she worked, the workers' coordination with abortionists to obtain particular specimens, the pressure placed on patients to "donate" fetal remains, and in some cases, the failure to obtain patient consent.

On October 7, 2015, the U.S House formed The Select Investigative Panel on Infant Lives with Rep. Marsha Blackburn (R, TN) as Chair. It has held two hearings, one in February 2016 and one in March. Having secured evidence through subpoenas, the Panel found that StemExpress employees obtained bonuses for various fetal organs obtained, with invoices to researchers for various body parts.

Stem Express had contracted with PP Mar Monte, PP Shasta Pacific and another abortion clinic to obtain fetal tissue. "This does not sound like tissue donation for research," Rep. Blackburn said, "This sounds like someone who wants to make money ... selling baby body parts." She worried that both pregnant women and their unborn babies are being used as "profit centers" for the clinics and tissue procurement groups.

The Select Panel also found the clinics were probably guilty of systematic violations of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) from 2010 – 2015 when they shared patients' private medical records with StemExpress personnel. "StemExpress did not have a medically valid reason to see, and the abortion clinics did not have a reason to provide patients' [protected health information]" Blackburn said. "Instead, [they shared the information] in furtherance of contractual agreements that financially benefitted StemExpress and the clinics."

In January of 2016, Brisco Cain, an attorney for Operation Rescue, a major pro-life organization, released a series of invoices between Planned Parenthood of the Gulf Coast (PPGC) and the University of Texas Medical Branch showing charges for "consent payments" ranging from $1,500 to $3,750 that PPGC supplied to university researchers. David Dalieden, CMP's head, notes that Melissa Farrell, PPGC Director of Research, indicated that PP uses the words "per consent" to charge for body parts "in order to 'frame' the project budget in a way that will look legal 'on paper.'" (See fifth video). Farrell also notes that "... my department contributes so much to the bottom line of our organization..."

Besides denying any wrong-doing, the pro-choice community's response has been to attempt to shut down any further investigation. On April 28, 2016, 98 Congressional Democrats signed a letter to House Speaker Paul Ryan and Chair Blackburn demanding that they dismantle the Panel investigating the abortion industry. Blackburn also noted that some of the persons who received subpoenas have "refused to comply at all," often at the instruction of the Panel's Democrat members. In late May, 2016, California state legislators introduced a bill supported by PP to make it illegal to secretly videotape any "health care provider."

As of July 15, 2016, at least 14 states have investigated PP, and 11, including Ohio, have cut off at least partial funding, with two more considering legislation to do so. However, defunding has been delayed in 4 of the 11 states by court order or other action. ■

Roe v Wade: A Bad Decision Yields Terrible Consequences by Dr. Ray Adamek

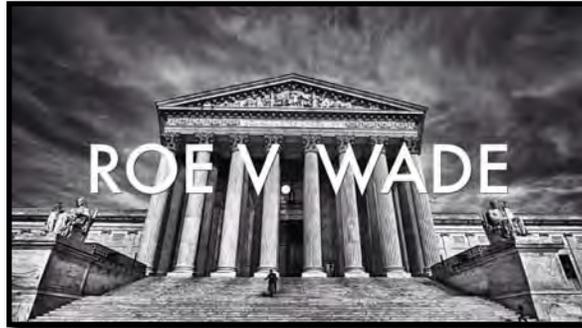

(NOTE: This is the 2nd part of a 2 part article continued from our Spring 2013 newsletter.)

Consequences of Roe v. Wade and Supporting Decisions

Vast Increases in Total Abortions The most comprehensive study of the incidence of abortion determined that in 1966, the last year before our abortion laws began to change, the number of induced abortions (legal plus illegal) occurring in the U.S. was about 125,000. Since 1967, therefore, induced abortions have increased 10 to 12 fold. From January 1, 1973 through December 31, 2015, according to figures reported by the Alan Guttmacher Institute, over 58.5 million legal abortions have been performed, a rate of 3,730 per day over this 43 year period. Not only are we killing many more unborn children, but a higher proportion of women are being subjected to the hazards of abortion.

Reduction of Individual Rights The rights of the human being in the womb have been negated, as well as the right of the father to have a say in the fate of his unborn offspring, even if he is married to the mother and willing to support their child. Court decisions flowing from Roe v. Wade have also seriously abridged parents' rights to have a say in their minor daughter's decision to have an abortion, and in some cases, even to know that their daughter is seeking an abortion. While Roe v. Wade has given women the right to treat her unborn child as property, it has never been used as a legal basis for establishing any other new rights for women. Rather than empowering women, legalized abortion has made it more difficult for them to realize their desires. Today the irresponsible male is free to say, "I don't want this child. You are free to abort it. If you choose not to, don't expect me to support it."

Thus, "It's the woman's choice" quickly becomes "It's the woman's problem." Finally, the right of doctors, nurses, pharmacists and other professionals not to participate in the abortion culture is constantly under attack by the "pro-choice" movement.

Legal Abortion Harms Women Far from being of benefit to women's "reproductive health," legal abortion harms women. Many studies have demonstrated that induced abortion is associated with an increase in the incidence of breast cancer, ectopic pregnancy, suicide, substance abuse, depression, other psychological problems, and premature births in subsequent pregnancies, creating problems not only for the woman, but for her future children. A liberal abortion policy was supposed to decrease the maternal mortality rate, but CDC figures indicate that the maternal mortality rate increased from 7.2 maternal deaths per 100,000 live births in 1987 to 17.8 in 2011, a 2.47 fold increase.

Illegitimate Births A liberal abortion policy was supposed to decrease births to single mothers. However, the government reports that such births have increased quite steadily from 13% of all births in 1973 to over 40% in 2014.

Child Abuse Legal abortion was supposed to reduce the incidence of child abuse, since fewer unwanted children would be born. Yet government data show that between 1977 and 1998, the child population grew by 8.8% while child abuse rose by 259%. A more recent analysis spanning the years 1990-2011 found a strong positive correlation ($r = .83$) between abortion rates and child abuse rates.

That is, as abortions increase or decrease, so do the rates of child abuse. If abortion reduced child abuse, the correlation would be negative, (abortions up, child abuse down), not positive.

Poverty Legal abortion was also supposed to reduce child poverty, since fewer unaffordable children would be born. Yet government data from 1973 through 2000 show no direct relationship between these two variables. Comparing the number of abortions in a given year with the percent of children below the poverty level in the next year shows the expected pattern fails to turn up 62% of the time. Child poverty does not tend to decrease when abortions increase. Rather, abortions and child poverty generally increase and decrease together.

Abortion as Birth Control Despite assertions by pro-choice advocates that women would seek abortions only in the most difficult circumstances, and that they would not use it as birth control, two surveys suggest the opposite. These surveys were conducted in 1987 and 2004 at 11 large abortion clinics. Their results were quite similar. The primary reasons women give for having abortions are social—they use abortion as backup birth control. Less than 7% of the women mention physical reasons such as the woman's health, the unborn's health, rape or incest as the primary reason for abortion. Moreover, some of the health conditions were self-diagnosed, not the result of a physician's examination. Nationally, 46% of women having an abortion in 2011 were having their second or higher order abortion.

Empower Women? Legalizing abortion was supposed to empower women. I would suggest it has encouraged some men to take the law into their own hands by tricking/coercing their partners to ingest abortifacients, assaulting them, and murdering them when they refuse to have a legal abortion. From 2014 through June, 2016, at least 10 murders of this type have been reported in the pro-life press, and likely these are not the only ones that occurred. A study in the Journal of the American Medical Association looking at maternal deaths from 1993 to 1998 found that homicide was the leading cause of death of pregnant women, accounting for 20% of deaths. This compared to 6% of deaths among non-pregnant women of reproductive age.

Government of Men, Not of Laws Although not the only example of a disturbing trend in our society, Roe v. Wade is a prime example of the rule of men rather than of laws. Usurping the legislative power of the people's duly elected state and federal legislators, seven unelected men on the Supreme Court struck down the abortion laws of all 50 states and, legislating from the bench, dictated what our abortion policy would be. In doing so they declared that abortion, something that had been recognized in law to be a terrible crime for over 100 years, was now a Constitutionally guaranteed right, and that the unborn's right to life did not exist. When we allow individual men to grant and take away rights so cavalierly, the rights of all are in jeopardy. It is time to restore a government of laws, not of men, and to allow our duly elected representatives to restore our unborn brothers' and sisters' right to life.

heal patients, save lives and reduce pain. Neither PAS or abortion is healthcare, for both involve the intentional ending of a human life. Many PAS advocates will state that the purpose of PAS is to enable patients with terminal illnesses to die with dignity and end uncontrollable pain. This is a myth as well. Dr. Greg Hamilton, an Oregon psychiatrist stated that "those promoting assisted suicide promised Oregon voters that it would be used only for extreme pain and suffering. Yet there has been no documented case of assisted suicide being used for untreatable pain. Instead, patients are being given lethal overdoses because of psychological and social concerns, especially fears that they may no longer be valued as people or may be a burden to their families."

Especially troubling is rationed health care coverage due to skyrocketing medical costs. PAS has been legal in Oregon since 1994. In 2008, Fox News reported a story about 53-year-old Randy Stroup of Dexter, Oregon. Uninsured and unable to pay for expensive chemotherapy, he applied to Oregon's state-run health plan for help. Lane Individual Practice Association (LIPA), which administers the Oregon Health Plan in Lane County, responded to Stroup's request with a letter saying the state would not cover Stroup's pricey treatment, but would pay for the less expensive cost of physician-assisted suicide! Unfortunately, this is not an isolated incident.

The National Association of Pro-Life Nurses believes that "nurses are never to be agents of death, regardless of the patient's prognosis. When the patient is suffering from an incurable disease or prolonged pain, our care is primarily directed at providing relief through symptom and pain management. This is usually termed palliative, or comfort care. The focus is not on death, but on achieving the highest quality of living for the patient. With adequate pain management, suicide becomes a less attractive alternative. 'We believe,' as one nurse aptly said, 'in assisted living, not in assisted suicide.'"

In his book Culture of Death, Wesley J. Smith says that our public health care policies and medical protocols need to be grounded "in a granite-like adherence to the sanctity and equality of each human life." Can we do that? We believe that we can as long as we look beyond the well crafted messaging that wrongly promotes the taking of a human life as a compassionate duty. We need to remember that part of our purpose is to oppose the use of medical science for any deliberate destruction of human life from the time of conception until natural death; and to demand due process of law and equal protection of law for all human beings regardless of size, degree of development, sex, physical or mental competence, or political, religious, economic, social, ethnic, or racial characteristics. God gave us life, and we cannot allow that life to be taken prematurely. ■
